

Milissa Dachisen was born and raised in Rockaway Township, New Jersey. After attending Rutgers University, she taught in Rockaway Township, in many of the same classrooms she once attended. An avid softball player, Ms. Dachisen can still be found competing on the diamond in and around Morris County.

After an eight-year stint teaching in her hometown, Ms. Dachisen became a Child Study Supervisor and Special Education Supervisor in Union County. She has served in her current capacity of Vice Principal/Director of Special Services since August 2003.

In addition to her B.A. from Rutgers, Ms. Dachisen earned a M.A. in Special Education from William Paterson University. Subsequently, she attended Montclair State University, where she earned a M.A. in Administration/Supervision in 2001.

In addition to softball, Ms. Dachisen's interests include physical fitness and spoiling her eight nephews and two nieces.
